Administrative Law

With the development of the Chinese administrative law system and the continuing improvement of domestic dispute resolution systems, administrative litigation cases in China have shown a significant growth trend in recent years.

JunHe is aware of the growing needs of clients in the area of administrative law. Over the years, JunHe has provided administrative law-related legal services to many domestic and foreign clients which includes conducting legislation research and assessment, advising on administrative decisions, advising on administration investigations, providing administrative compliance resolutions, advising on hearings for administrative penalties, and representing clients in administrative reconsideration proceedings and administrative lawsuits. Through the integration of high-quality resources and with key input from within and outside the firm, JunHe has formed a professional team consisting of administrative law lawyers and consultants that has won trust and praise from clients.

Legal Team

JunHe's Administrative Law Team is composed of experts, scholars, senior administrative trial experts and senior lawyers with solid administrative and legal backgrounds and rich practical experience. All of our lawyers have received a legal education either in China or overseas and have outstanding knowledge in administrative law and administrative procedure law, both locally and overseas. The business area involves administrative reconsideration, litigation, legislation, and management, the construction of government ruled by law, and administrative compliance solutions for enterprises. It focuses on administrative legislation, management behavior and dispute resolution. The team provides administrative legal services and opinions to government and enterprises, promotes Rule by Law, enhances administrative compliance of enterprises, and assists clients to identify and eliminate hidden troubles and mitigate losses.

JunHe's Administrative Law Team allocates the best resources (including contacting expert consultants, media public relations, handling government relations, etc.) within the scope of the firm, ensuring that clients benefit from JunHe's integrated platform. JunHe's Administrative Law department promotes teamwork and staff members are unrestricted by different regions or business areas. This guarantees the efficiency and quality of our lawyers' cases while effectively reducing costs for clients. The Administrative Law Team conducts effective communications with relevant departments, institutions and organizations in a timely manner regarding the extent, limit, and trial practices applicable to existing laws and regulations and other issues.

JunHe, founded in Beijing in 1989, is one of the first private partnership law firms in China. Since its establishment, JunHe has grown to be a large and recognized Chinese law firm. The firm has fourteen offices around the world and a team comprised of more than a thousand professionals.

They (JunHe) are adept at handling complex matters, giving us balanced and practical advice. They can make the deals happen. The team are also very efficient.
