Competition

JunHe was one of the first Chinese law firms to deliver legal services relating to competition law. Our lawyers play key roles in the formulation of regulations, rules and guidelines under the Chinese antitrust framework, and are leading voices in the establishment and improvement of the Chinese antitrust legal system. Due to our specialized legal knowledge, in-depth legislative insight, and strong government relationships, JunHe is a leader in this practice area and has a remarkable presence in the fields of legal services in respect to antitrust filing, investigation, compliance and litigation.

Our Team

JunHe's competition law team can trace its history back to 2008, and consists of nearly 20 professionals, including partners/consultants, and senior and junior associates, primarily based in our Beijing and Shanghai offices. JunHe's competition law team all graduated from renowned law schools in China and abroad, have excellent educational backgrounds and extensive work experience in competition law. We are known for our holistic approach in the provision of legal services and our adroit handling of complex competition law matters, making us the top choice for leading domestic and international companies in the field of competition law.

Key Practice Areas

- Assessing whether transactions will trigger filings for the concentration of undertakings and assisting clients in merger control filings; advising clients on compliance issues related to the concentration of undertakings in different stages of transactions; assisting clients in the analysis and coordination of global filings; and working as monitoring trustees of conditionally approved cases.
- Reviewing and revising commercial arrangements, contracts and agreements from the perspective of avoiding monopolistic agreements and abuse of dominant market position risks and providing legal opinions and recommendations.
- Assisting clients in setting up and implementing compliance systems.
- Drafting and reviewing compliance manuals/guidelines relating to competition law and providing compliance training.
- Assisting clients in conducting compliance evaluation and audits, risk evaluation, developing rectification schemes and developing tailored lists of dos and don'ts.
- Assisting clients in cooperating with anti-monopoly administrative investigations and applying for leniency.

JunHe, founded in Beijing in 1989, is one of the first private partnership law firms in China. Since its establishment, JunHe has grown to be a large and recognized Chinese law firm. The firm has fifteen offices around the world and a team comprised of more than a thousand professionals.

- Assisting clients in assessing potential anti-monopoly litigation risks and defense strategies and representing clients in anti-monopoly civil and administrative actions.

Extensive Industry Resources

Through many years of practice, JunHe's competition law team has built strong working relationships with competition law regulators, having earned their trust through our focused work, in-depth legal knowledge, and extensive hands-on experience. Regulators often seek our attorneys' opinions on complex and difficult competition law issues and are regularly invited to speak at government seminars and participate in the drafting and amending of relevant laws and regulations. JunHe's competition law team has also established close personal relationships with other preeminent law firms at home and abroad. We cultivate our industry resources to deliver timely, efficient, and superior services to our clients.

Remarkable Performance

JunHe has achieved remarkable performances in the field of competition law.

In the field of merger control filings, JunHe has dealt with almost 700 filing/failure-to-file cases, assisting clients to obtain unconditional and conditional approvals. JunHe has handled investigations in to gun-jumping transactions, coordinated merger control filings in overseas jurisdictions and provided robust support for merger control reviews in the global expansion of Chinese enterprises.

In the field of anti-monopoly investigations, JunHe has assisted clients in cooperating with government investigations and helping achieve positive results, including decisions of not initiating investigations, penalty exemptions and reductions, and suspended investigations with rectification commitments.

In the field of anti-monopoly litigation, JunHe has handled several influential cases, including the first administrative monopoly case and the first vertical monopoly agreement case since the implementation of anti-monopoly laws.

In the field of anti-monopoly compliance consultancy, JunHe has assisted many large and medium-sized enterprises with wide industry coverage to establish and improve their compliance policies and systems and conduct comprehensive and focused compliance audits, effectively helping clients prevent anti-monopoly risks.

The expansion of Chinese enterprises overseas spans numerous jurisdictions, making anti-monopoly compliance essential to their global operations. Leveraging JunHe's international partnership network, our competition law team plays a leading role in providing anti-monopoly compliance advice and recommendations to Chinese enterprises in their global business deployment. This includes commercial arrangements related to distribution, supply and other global business activities.
